MOUNT CLEMENS, Mich., May 15 .- A wiry little fellow at the schoolhouse here Thursday came very near giving Superintendent Price and the whole school a thrashing. He was catcher in a schoolboy ball game. Upon getting his man out, he pulled off his big mitt and tossed it to the pitcher, striking him square in the face. The teacher, thinking the boy threw the mitten intentionally, sent him up to Superintendent Price for punishment He refused to go, the teacher ordered two large boys, Sumner and Hubbard, to take him up, but he whipped both of the boys. Superintendent Price came down, but he too was held at bay. The superintendent then telephoned for Marshal Trew, who handcuffed the little fellow and took him to jail. While the marshal was unlocking a cell, the offender escaped and is still at large.

PARDONED BY GOV. RICH.

Mrs. Sarah Haviland Had Been in Prison for Thirty Years.

LANSING, Mich., May 14.-The only woman in the state prison at Jackson, and the oldest prisoner in point of service save one, was pardoned by Governor Rich Wednesday. Her name is Sarah Haviland and she has been in prison thirty years. She was the twentieth prisoner sent to the institution. The crime for which the woman was sentenced to prison for life in 1866, when she was 38 years of age, was murder of her own children, three in number. In urging the exercise of executive clemency the pardon board says:

"The crime was most heinous and we do not wish to condone it. And while there were some mitigating circumstances. we believe her sentence was just. The mitigating circumstances we believe to be that she was under the influence of a man who possessed a will much stronger than her own and who agreed to marry her but for the bar of so many children. The influence which the man possessed over her would now be called hypnotism, and it was while acting under it that the crime was committed."

CUPID IN A UNIVERSITY.

Clandestine Marriages Annoy the Faculty at Ann Arbor, Mich.

ANN ARBOR, May 15 .- University circles are not done talking about clandestine marriages. The most notable was that of Mr. Perry of the law department and Maude Elaine Caldwell, a poetess. Their flight to West Virginia for the purpose of getting married has been entirely condoned by the respective families. But the faculty does not disguise its annoyance just the same.

Although such events are practically unprecedented in university annals, yet they were freely predicted in the early days of co-education. Demonstrator Lewis, the hero of one of these episodes, has retired from the university and left the city. The third couple has also departed, but Perry will remain and graduate. There is a party in the faculty who believe he should be censured and that a rule should be passed against clandestine marriages. But this party is in a minor-

FUNERAL OF CAPTAIN PECK.

The Remains Taken by Boat from Detroit to Cleveland.

DETROIT, May 12.—Captain E. M. Peck, the millionaire vessel owner, died last Friday. Monday his remains were shipped on the steamer E. M. Peck to Cleveland, where the interment took place Tuesday. Before he died Captain Peck asked that after his death his body be conveyed into his library, his business office and other places that he liked to frequent. Monday afternoon the coffin was carried into various rooms in his handsome house. In the evening the body was taken into his office in the Parker and Miller building. Then it was placed on the long and cool plazza in the rear of the building overlooking the busy river front. There the body rested until the time came to remove it to the boat. The funeral party occupied cabins on the steamer, which was draped in mourning from bow to stern.

Has Fasted Eighty-Four Days.

BATTLE CREEK, Mich., May 15 .- Mrs. Henry Ingram is still fasting. It is now eighty-four days since she has taken a morsel of food of any kind and now she does not want or appear to need anything to eat. Her health remains about the same. The strange condition of Mrs. Ingram and the account of the case published in the newspapers will be the means of bringing together soon two brothers who did not know whether the other was dead or alive. Mrs. Ingram's husband, Henry Ingram, had a brother, George Ingram, who left Lyons, N. Y., in 1859, going west. Henry came to this city a year later. George located in Detroit and the brothers have known nothing of each other all these years.

Waterspout on Lake Michigan.

St. Joseph, Mich., May 12.-During a wind and rain storm here Monday afternoon an immense waterspout sprung up in Lake Michigan. It was followed by a flerce squall, and for a while it was feared that the city might be endangered. Water was sent whirling up in great volumes high into the air, falling back like a continuous cloudburst. The waterspout disturbed the water for many yards about it and left a long path of foam-whitened, seething water. This phenomenon traveled with wonderful rapidity for several miles, finally breaking. It is the largest waterspout ever seen here, and is the first one in many years.

The Case of Miss Sparrow.

LANSING, Mich., May 13.-In January E. W. Sparrow, one of the best-known politicians and capilalists of Michigan began a suit to have his sister declared insane. Miss Sparrow fought the case at every turn, and when the probate court finally decided that she was insane and ordered her committed to the Kalamazoo asylum, she appealed to the circuit court. Mr. Sparrow then removed the case to the supreme court, which Tuesday decided that the determination of the probate court is final and cannot be appealed

As she turned to go he suddenly placed the weapon behind his ear and blew out his brains.

Conspirators Sentenced.

PERE MARQUETTE STATUE.

What Congressman Quigg Says Concern ing Its Acceptance.

WASHINGTON, May 16 .- "Inasmuch as the question of the acceptance or non-acceptance of the Pere Marquette statue hinges on the result of my inquiries as to precedents," said Congressman Quigg, formerly editor of the New York Press, "it is my purpose to proceed carefully with my investigations on this subject.

"Wisconsin's people evidently knew what they wanted when they chose the statue of Marquette as one of their repre sentatives in Statuary hall and congress should defer largely to their wishes in such a matter. This will be the idea uppermost in my mind as I go along with the subject intrusted to me by the house committee on the library, and there will be no discrimination against the statue on religious grounds.

"My father was a Methodist preacher and I was raised in that church, but this will not have the slight influence with me in reaching a determination on which to base a report to congress. All I want to know is what will please the people of Wisconsin, and their wishes will have more influence with me than anything else, although I am not a state's right man in the commonly accepted definition of the

DYNAMITE OUTRAGE IN OHIO.

The Miscreant Winds Up His Work with Deadly Bullets.

FREMONT, O., May 16 .- A terrible tragedy occurred Friday night, east of the village of Lindsay and about eight miles from this city, in which one man was killed outright and two sons are in such a condition that death may result at any moment. The deed was committed about midnight and evidently was well planned. At a late hour of the night the family of Jacob Hess were aroused by an explosion which shattered their home, but no one was injured. Mr. Hess and his two sons immediately prepared to leave the house to ascertain the cause and they had hardly stepped out when a shot was fired and the old gentleman dropped over dead.

Another shot and one of the sons fell. pierced in the breast with a quantity of buckshot. Again a shot and the other son received a shot. The fiend then escaped and thus far has not been captured. Suspicion points strongly to the deed having been committed by a young farmer named Louis Billau, who has been desperately in love with the daughter of Mr. Hess, but his suit has been strenuously opposed by the father and also the brothers. Lately he has been prohibited from making calls, and this so enraged him that he has been nearly wild.

Councell Acquitted. BALTIMORE, May 18,-Jerome Councell, accused of the murder of Captain Lange and wife, told an apparently straight story on the stand Friday of his doings on the day and night the double murder was committed, and his testimony was borne out in part by that of his brother. To the surprise of Councell, his lawyers and his friends the trial was concluded Friday night at 10 o'clock, and at 11:30 the jury brought in a verdict of acquittal, and the prisoner was promptly released. He had expected a verdict of acquittal or a disagreement, but he not think it would be reached so soon.

Gertrude Taylor Goes Free.

OREGON, Mo., May 18.-The trial of Gertrude Taylor, charged with the murder of her father, Dillon B. Taylor, ended in a verdict of not guilty. Gertrude Taylor is only 14 years old. It was charged that some weeks ago in a fit of anger she put rough on rats into the coffee. Her father died and her brother and sister-in-law were made invalids for life while others of the family were made temporarily ill. The girl after several days confessed. Her uncle, who is wealthy, stood by her, going her bail and furnishing the money for her defense. The jury was out but two hours.

Wife-Murder Surrenders. CHICAGO, May 18 .- Daniel McCarthy, who murdered his wife at the house of her mother, 243 Illinois street last Tuesday, walked into the Twenty-second street police station Friday night and gave himself up. The police have supposedly been searching for McCarthy for four days, and while he was walking about the streets of the city they failed to find him.

Clerk Hire For the House During Recess.

NOT OBJECTIONABLE IN ITSELF.

But the Money Is to Be Paid to the Congressman Himself and Not at First to the Clerk, and the Matter Causes Crit-

WASHINGTON, May 19.—[Special.]—One act of the dying congress will be pretty sure to return to plague those who are re-sponsible for it. The people of the United States once set the seal of their condemnation most unmistakably upon anything savoring of a salary grab, and for this reason the vote of the house to pay each mem-ber $100 a month for clerk hire during the recess will not be popular. In discussing this matter it is well to avoid extremes, that injustice may not be done to either side. The facts are plain. During the sessions of congress each member of the house is allowed $100 a month with which to hire a clerk to attend to his routine public business, the letters from his constituents. etc. This is not wholly objectionable. It is true that many of the members of the house are annoyed with letters and requests of a trivial nature so numerous as to take all their time in attending to them. Constituents think it all right to ask their representatives to look after pensions, patents, claims, copies of papers, public documents, garden seeds and a thousand and one things. Every request of this sort takes time and trouble.

One Kind of Statesmanship.

I know members of congress who never do anything of a public nature that attracts the attention of the country. They take little part in the work of the house, either on the floor or in committee room. They apparently do not care to be influential and have no ambition except to please their constituents and secure re-election as a reward for doing small jobs at the capital. This is not a very high plane upon which to put statesmanship, but it is a useful one. These men spend nearly all their time writing letters and running errands. It is their stock in trade, their sole political capital, and quite effective it seems to be, for their constituents send them back here term after term. And yet it is an open question whether that is or is not the very work for which they are employed, for which they get their $5,000 a year, $250 stationery allowance per annum and mileage, which in many cases runs up to a very comfortable figure.

It should be understood that only a small number of the members of the house are overburdened with correspondence and requests from their constituents. Perhaps half of them are able to get through with all such work without assistance, if they are reasonably industrious. But because some of the members are overburdened the house, leaning to the side of generosity to itself, decided to give every man a clerk to do his work for him, on the plea that it was public business. Members said to themselves there was no reason why they should wear out their lives as errand boys for their constituents. They must have some time to attend to the more important part of their duties, to devote to the study of public questions. One member said to

"I have made a reputation on the silver question, and my speech on that topic is in great demand. I desire to keep in touch with this question as it develops and to have some influence upon it. But how am I going to do so if I must spend fourfifths of my time running about after garden seeds and pensions and patents and writing letters about them?"

Money Paid to Members.

This is the argument which justified the employment of a clerk for every member, and there is a great deal of justice in it. The mistake was in paying the money to the member of congress and not directly to his clerk. In the senate the names of senators' clerks are borne on the rolls, and the clerks themselves receipt for their salaries, just as the senators do. If this had been done in the house much of the scandal would have been obviated. Instead, the money is paid to the member, and he may dispense it as he pleases. I could if I wished tell some queer stories as to what is done with this $100 a month, but I refrain. It is enough to say that many members pay out all the money in good faith. Many others hire members of their families, their sons, daughters or even wives. Still others, perhaps the majority, employ young men or women at $40 or $50 a month to do their work and pocket the difference. A few-I am happy to say only a few-put all the money in their pockets and make it a mere addition to their salaries. A few more, and perhaps only a very few, pay the money to persons who make only a pretense of working for it, but who are favorites, social, personal or political, of the member. The less said about this the better.

A Cause For Scandal.

Whatever justification there is for the employment of clerks during the sessions of congress, and there is a good deal, there does not seem to be any at all for hiring them during the recess. No one believes that 25 per cent of the members will use this money in good faith. Some of them I know of, who voted against the grab, will refuse to draw the money at all and intend to cover it back into the treasury. While it may be admitted that most of the members will have some correspondence with their constituents to attend to during the summer, that is what they are paid for. Their own salaries do not stop. Besides, every one knows that the great bulk of this correspondence is personal to the member, relating to his canvass for renomination or re-election or to his private business affairs. Considered as a whole, the clerk hire appropriation is a salary grab, a sneak upon the public treasury, and nothing else can be made of it.

If the clerks were put on the public rolls and the money paid to them in person, there would not be much scandal. In that case $50 or $60 a month would be ample compensation, for there are hundreds of young men and women in Washington-yes, thousands-willing to work for those wages. But members objected to having the matter made of record, as it is done in the senate, because they wanted to employ members of their families to do the work and pay them the money. A few might be courageous enough to say: "Yes, the work is of a public nature, it is necessary, it is for the good of the people, and my son or daughter can do it better than any one else I know of. Therefore I put his or her name on the roll and intend that the money shall be earned." But the great majority would not touch the money at all if they were required to make public confession that they had "kept it in the
